Here's Some Important Information You Should Know About Your Emergency System

911 is the official national emergency number in the United States and Canada.

The 911 network is a vital part of our nation's emergency response and disaster preparedness system. Today, most 911 systems automatically report the telephone number and calling party location for calls made to 911 from a wireline phone. This capability is called Enhanced 911 or E911.

When you dial 911, Randolph Telephone switching equipment quickly connects you to the county's Public Safety Answering Point (PSAP) dispatcher to handle your medical, fire or police emergency. That routing is based on the address associated with your telephone number in the 911 database.

Therefore, it is very important that you provide Randolph Telephone with accurate 911 address information and update us with any changes. For example, if you are building a new home or adding a telephone at another location on your property, it is your responsibility to provide us with updated, accurate information. To confirm that the PSAP has accurate location information on your account, you should contact the 911 addressing department in the county in which you reside to verify that information.

911 service is provided to you by the county where you reside. That county sets the amount of the 911 fee that appears on your telephone bill. Randolph Telephone collects the 911 fee mandated by your county and this fee is remitted to your county government, less a 1% administrative fee to Randolph Telephone.

The 911 system is an intricate network involving not only Randolph Telephone's infrastructure, but other parties as well. If you should encounter a problem, report it to Randolph Telephone so that we may investigate. □

Online Photo Albums Are A Great Way To Share Memories With Family & Friends

Now that the holidays are over and all the pictures have been taken, how do you share them with others?

Remember when sharing pictures meant making duplicates and sending them to all of your family and friends? Well, sharing pictures has become a lot easier thanks to web sites that offer online photo albums and other picture-related services.

These sites allow you to upload your digital pictures, edit imperfections, organize them into albums, and then invite friends and family to view them online. These web sites are a great way to share shots of the holidays or special occasions with dozens of people simultaneously.

After all, what good are all those digital pictures just sitting on your camera or your computer's hard drive? Posting pictures makes them available to more people to enjoy.

Sharing pictures on web sites has many advantages and listed below are just a few of the top reasons:

- Online photo sharing can be faster than e-mailing
- Online photo sharing can be cheaper than mailing out prints
- Online photo printing can be easier than doing it yourself

- Online photo storage keeps your memories safe

There are many popular photo sites and based on what you plan on doing with your photos will determine which site is right for you.

Below is a list of popular sites that are worth checking into, but always remember to look before you leap. Always do your homework before you commit to a photo-sharing web site.

- dotphoto.com
- flickr.com
- kodakgallery.com
- shutterfly.com
- smugmug.com
- snapfish.com

By listing these sites Randolph Telephone in no way endorses them. □

New Year, New Look, Same Local Service!

With the dawning of 2007, Randolph Telephone is sporting a new look!

It was time to replace the old triangular-shaped logo, which was created a decade ago. We now have a brighter, more modern logo that represents those advanced services we now offer and symbolizes the local service that we are known for.

With all the advancements in telecommunications, it was necessary to develop a new look that conveyed who we were and who we have become.

So, as the old saying goes, "Out with the old and in with the new!" And with this new look, remember that we are still the same local people providing the same superior service. ☐
